Compact and affordable contemporary design

EN

MOOME is a Belgian design label, born from the collaboration between design label INDERA and the creative agency MOOZ.

MOOME stands for compact and affordable contemporary design and brings both high quality design furniture and functional interior accessories.

MOOME turns to a determined audience looking for sustainable and high quality design furniture. Our collection is anything but mainstream. We collaborate with talented domestic and foreign designers and in doing so we choose for both established names and young talent.

Compact living without compromise

Families increasingly opt for a terraced house in the city or a new form of living together in an intergenerational home or via cohousing. We are less tied to a particular place and move more easily for work or studies. Once the children have left home, a lot of couples trade their spacious family home for a practical and maintenance-friendly apartment.
The MOOME collection is inspired by these different living environments. Modular furniture and multifunctional living accessories that you can easily take with you are a must in a practical and sustainable contemporary interior. A more nomadic lifestyle asks for an interior that grows with its inhabitants. MOOME responds to this and brings innovative furniture that effortlessly adapts to a new space with other uses or new inhabitants. Think about our multifunctional furniture with extra (hidden) storage space or our modular sofas that are easily demountable and offer various setup possibilities. You can literally take off in all directions.

Belgian quality and craftsmanship

MOOME is part of the Mecam group, a Belgian family-owned company that has been operating in the furniture sector for over 40 years. Passion and craftsmanship are passed on from generation to generation. In the factory in Dilsen-Stokkem (Belgium) no compromises are made in terms of comfort and quality.

STUDIO SEGERS

How have you (Wim & Bob Segers, father and son) landed into the world of design?

Wim: Influenced by my parents I was interested in culture from a young age. Fine Arts and Architecture have been an integral part of my education. I cannot imagine a life without. On a regular basis we went to expositions and we went looking for new buildings (father Segers had been a contractor before), on the other hand, there was an ever-increasing interest in the quest for beautifulness and the reason for which a realization could possibly be perceived as repellent.

Opting for product development (at that time: industrial design) was a step into the dark. Design hadn't been that popular, you know. Books or magazines about design were rare.
The five-year program in product development under the supervision of Piet Stockmans was a great source of inspiration. The internships at Velda, Tiger Plastics and Mosa gave me enough confidence to get professionally and passionately involved into the world of design.

Bob: Bob himself was also spoon-fed with architecture and design. Weekends and holidays had always been in the interest of Wim and Rita (graphic designer). My brother Raf (architect) and I were taken to expositions and architectural projects. For me there was no doubt at all when I chose to step into the school of Arts (architectural design) and pursued that path with a higher degree in interior design and furniture design.

Where do you get your inspiration from?

Being designers we're constantly seeking for inspiring situations. No doubt that the international fairs in Milan, Cologne and Paris are the place-to-be when it comes to design and everything related to it. The bi-annuals in Venice have been a fix visit for 15 years. Citytrips and journeys have an inspiring effect and in the logic of nature we discover surprising perspectives that are taken into consideration while developing new products. Inspiration is like a dynamo that needs to be recharged over new input.

Do you follow certain guidelines or directives in your work?

Each and every design is built upon its context. First, a clear problem case is formulated. Then we draw and look for solutions based on logic and intuition. In this stage creative input is of utmost importance. A fair use of materials, the right proportions, being environmental-friendly, having solid constructions... a sound design has to comply with them all. The final result has to be right.

What do you do to relax?

Relaxation is equivocal: passive and active. Nothing is more delightful in life than a cozy sofa (from the MOOME collection of course) to plop down on. Exercising, walking or going to the pub with friends are stress relieving and let us escape the daily routine of work and the stress of short deadlines. While visiting an exposition or while being on a city trip we feel free and inspired at the same time.

Do you have certain dreams or ambitions that you would like to see fulfilled?

Our ambition is not to become the largest designer company – we strive for the best quality. We are fully aware that design on its own simply doesn't exist. Design is a complex and active discipline that cannot be ripped apart from its context. Interior, architecture, graphic design, web design and design 'pure' are closely related.
Our ambition for the future is to unite all these disciplines and to improve the interaction between them. A challenge we want to meet to realize more founded designs that capture a global perspective. Quality and creativity as baselines for future realizations.
